

Chapter 13

Human Resource Management

By

Dr. Doaa Saleh

Overview

Definitions

- Appropriate Human Resources:

The individuals within the organization who make a valuable contribution to management system goal attainment.

- Inappropriate Human Resources:

The individuals within the organization who don't make a valuable contribution to management system goal attainment.

- Valuable contribution:

Could be determined by how human resources interact and cooperate to use all other management system resources

Providing Human Resources Steps

Before human resource join organization

STEP 1
Recruitment

STEP 2
Selection

After human resource join organization

STEP 3
Training

STEP 4
Performance
Appraisal

Recruitment

- Definition:

Is the initial attraction and screening of the supply of prospective human resources available to fill a position.

- Purpose:

Is to narrow a large field of prospective employees to a relatively small group of individuals from which someone eventually will be hired.

Recruitment

1. Knowing The Job
2. Knowing Sources of Human Resources
3. Sources Inside the Organization
 - Human Resource Inventory
 - Wikstrom Human Resource Inventory
4. Sources Outside the Organization
5. Knowing the Law
6. Affirmative Action

Recruitment

Knowing The Job

- Job Analysis:

Is technique commonly used to gain understanding of the job with aim of determining a job description and a job specification.

- Job Description:

Is a list of specific activities that must be performed by whoever holds the position.

- Job Specification:

Is a list of specific characteristics of the individual who should be hired for the job.

Recruitment

Knowing The Job

Recruitment

1. Knowing The Job

2. Knowing Sources of Human Resources

3. Sources Inside the Organization ➡

➤ Human Resource Inventory

➤ Wikstrom Human Resource Inventory

4. Sources Outside the Organization

5. Knowing the Law

6. Affirmative Action

Recruitment

Knowing Sources of Human Resources

- The supply of individuals from which to recruit is continually changing, which means that at times, finding appropriate human resources will be much harder than at other times.
- Human resources specialists in organizations continually monitor the labor market.
- Sources of human resources available to fill a position can be inside the organization and outside the organization.

Recruitment

1. Knowing The Job
2. Knowing Sources of Human Resources
3. Sources Inside the Organization ➡
 - Human Resource Inventory
 - Wikstrom Human Resource Inventory
4. Sources Outside the Organization
5. Knowing the Law
6. Affirmative Action

Recruitment

Sources Inside the Organization

- Some individuals who already work for the organization may be well qualified for an open position.
- Promotion from within has the advantages of:
 - Building employee morale.
 - Encouraging employees to work harder.
 - Attracting employees to stay with the organization.

Recruitment

Sources Inside the Organization - Human Resource Inventory

- Definition:

It consists of information about the characteristics of organization members (Past Performance and Future Potential).

- Objective:

To keep management up to date about the possibilities for filling a position from within.

Recruitment

Sources Inside the Organization – Wikstrom Human Resource Inventory

- Wikstrom said that organizations keep three types of records that can be combined to maintain a useful human resource inventory.
- Management Inventory Card
Contains an employee organizational history and an indication of how he might be used in the future.
- Position Replacement Form
This record focuses on position-centered information rather than the people-centered information
- Management Manpower Replacement Chart
This chart presents a composite view of the individuals management considers significant for human resource planning

Recruitment

Sources Inside the Organization – Wikstrom Management Inventory Card

NAME Murray, Mel	AGE 47	EMPLOYED 1992
PRESENT POSITION Manager, Sales (House Fans Division)		ON JOB 6 years
PRESENT PERFORMANCE Outstanding—exceeded sales goal in spite of stiffer competition.
STRENGTHS Good planner—motivates subordinates very well—excellent communication.
WEAKNESSES Still does not always delegate as much as situation requires. Sometimes does not understand production problems.
EFFORTS TO IMPROVE Has greatly improved in delegating in last two years; also has organized more effectively after taking a management course on own time and initiative.
COULD MOVE TO Vice President, Marketing		WHEN 2010
TRAINING NEEDED More exposure to problems of other divisions (attend top staff conference?). Perhaps university program stressing staff role of corporate marketing versus line sales.
COULD MOVE TO Manager, House or Industrial Fans Division		WHEN 2011 2012
TRAINING NEEDED Course in production management; some project working with production people; perhaps a good business game somewhere.

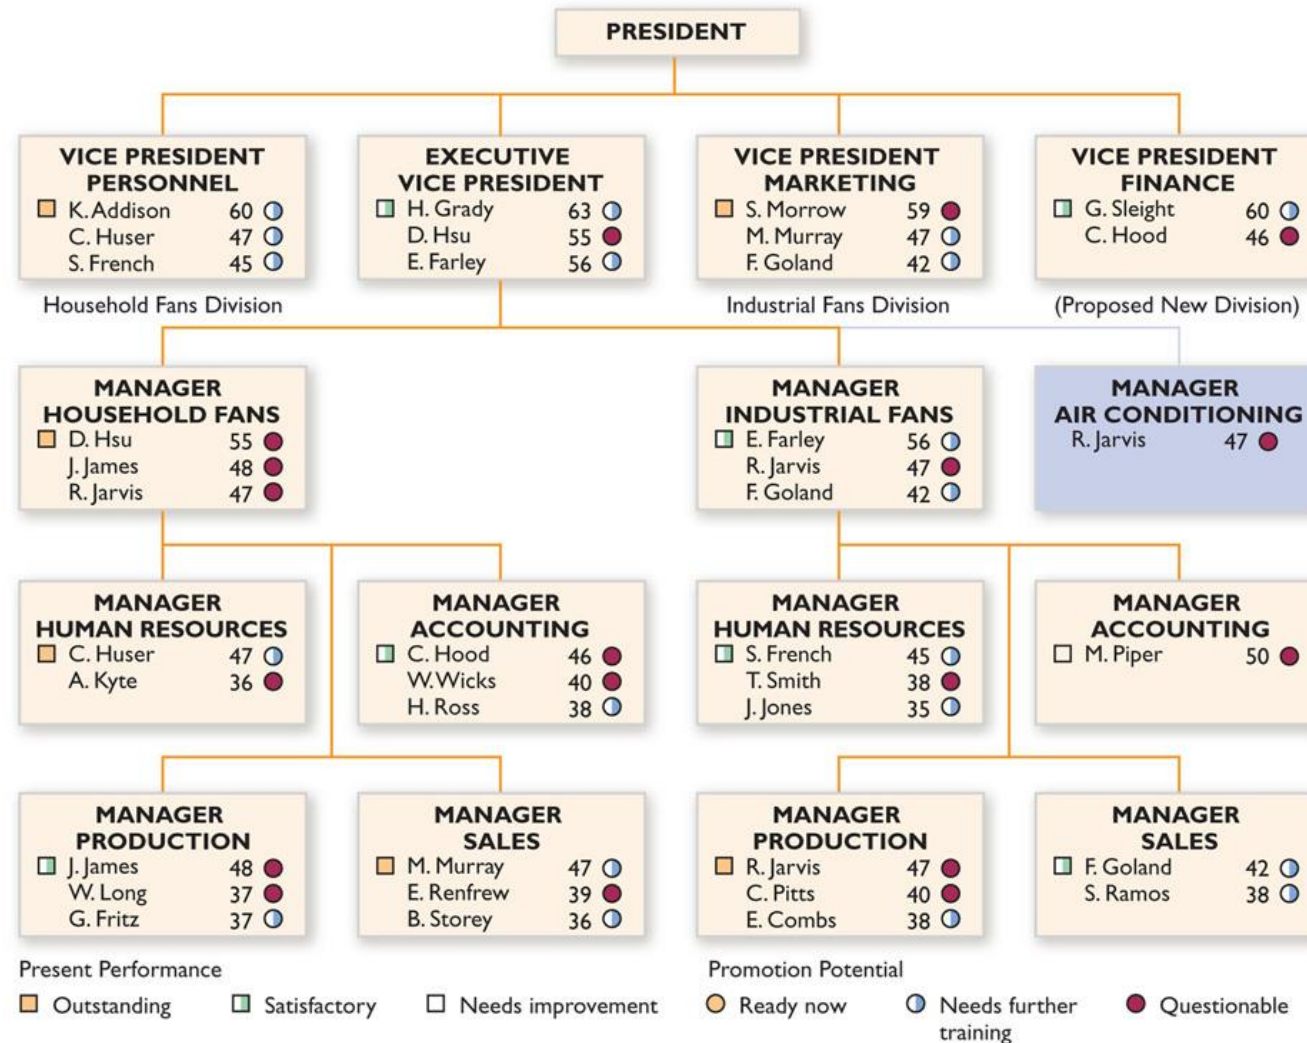

Recruitment

Sources Inside the Organization – Wikstrom Position Replacement Form

POSITION		Manager, Sales (House Fans Division)
PERFORMANCE	INCUMBENT	SALARY	MAY MOVE
Outstanding	Mel Murray	$44,500	1 Year
REPLACEMENT 1		SALARY	AGE
Earl Renfrew		$39,500	39
PRESENT POSITION		EMPLOYED:
Field Sales Manager, House Fans		Present Job	Company
		3 years	10 years
TRAINING NEEDED			WHEN READY
Special assignment to study market potential for air conditioners to provide forecasting experience.			Now
REPLACEMENT 2		SALARY	AGE
Bernard Storey		$38,500	36
PRESENT POSITION		EMPLOYED:
Promotion Manager, House Fans		Present Job	Company
		4 years	7 years
TRAINING NEEDED			WHEN READY
Rotation to field sales. Marketing conference in fall.			2 years

Recruitment

Sources Inside the Organization – Wikstrom Management Manpower Replacement Chart

Recruitment

Sources Inside the Organization – Wikstrom Human Resource Inventory

- Wikstrom's human resource inventory system can serve as the foundation for succession planning in organizations.
- Succession planning
Is the process of outlining who will follow whom in various organizational positions.
- Computer software is available to aid managers in keeping track of the organization's complex human resource inventories and in making better decisions about how employees can best be deployed and developed.

Recruitment

1. Knowing The Job
2. Knowing Sources of Human Resources
3. Sources Inside the Organization
 - Human Resource Inventory
 - Wikstrom Human Resource Inventory
4. Sources Outside the Organization
5. Knowing the Law
6. Affirmative Action

Recruitment

Sources Outside the Organization

- Competitors.

Advantages (individual knows the business, competitor paid for training, weakening competitor, know how to compete the source)

- Employment Agencies.

They help people and organization to match the job (Public & Private).

- Readers of Certain Publications.

Advertisement in a suitable publication based on the position level.

- Educational Institutions.

Interview students close to graduation time.

Recruitment

1. Knowing The Job
2. Knowing Sources of Human Resources
3. Sources Inside the Organization
 - Human Resource Inventory
 - Wikstrom Human Resource Inventory
4. Sources Outside the Organization
5. Knowing the Law
6. Affirmative Action

Recruitment

Knowing the Law

- Managers need to be aware of the laws that govern recruitment efforts.
- Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC)
Enforce federal laws prohibiting discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, and national origin in recruitment, hiring, firing, layoffs, and all other employment practices.
- Pregnancy Discrimination.
- Age Discrimination.
- Disability Discrimination.
- Equal opportunity legislation protects the right of a citizen to work and obtain a fair wage based primarily on merit and performance.

Recruitment

1. Knowing The Job
2. Knowing Sources of Human Resources
3. Sources Inside the Organization
 - Human Resource Inventory
 - Wikstrom Human Resource Inventory
4. Sources Outside the Organization
5. Knowing the Law
6. Affirmative Action

Recruitment

Affirmative Action

- Affirmative Action Program.

Is to eliminate barriers and increase opportunities for the purpose of increasing the utilization of underutilized and/or disadvantaged individuals.

- How much progress have been made towards eliminating barriers:
 1. How many minority and disadvantaged individuals are employed.
 2. How many minority and disadvantaged individuals should be employed according to EEOC guidelines.
 3. Comparing the numbers obtained in steps 1 and 2.

Recruitment

Affirmative Action

- Modern management recommends that managers should follow the guidelines of affirmative action, not because they are mandated by law, but because of the characteristics of today's labor supply.
- According to these writers, more than half of the U.S. workforce now consists of minorities, immigrants, and women.
- Diversity in age, and with the aging of America's baby boom generation, recruiting managers are increasingly paying attention to real and perceived differences in work values among younger generations of workers.

Selection

- Definition:

Choosing an individual to hire from all those who have been recruited.

- It is dependent on the recruitment step.
- Each stage in the selection reduces the total group of prospective employees until, finally, one individual is hired.

Selection Steps

STAGES OF THE SELECTION PROCESS

Preliminary screening from records, data sheets, etc.
Preliminary interview

Intelligence tests
Aptitude tests

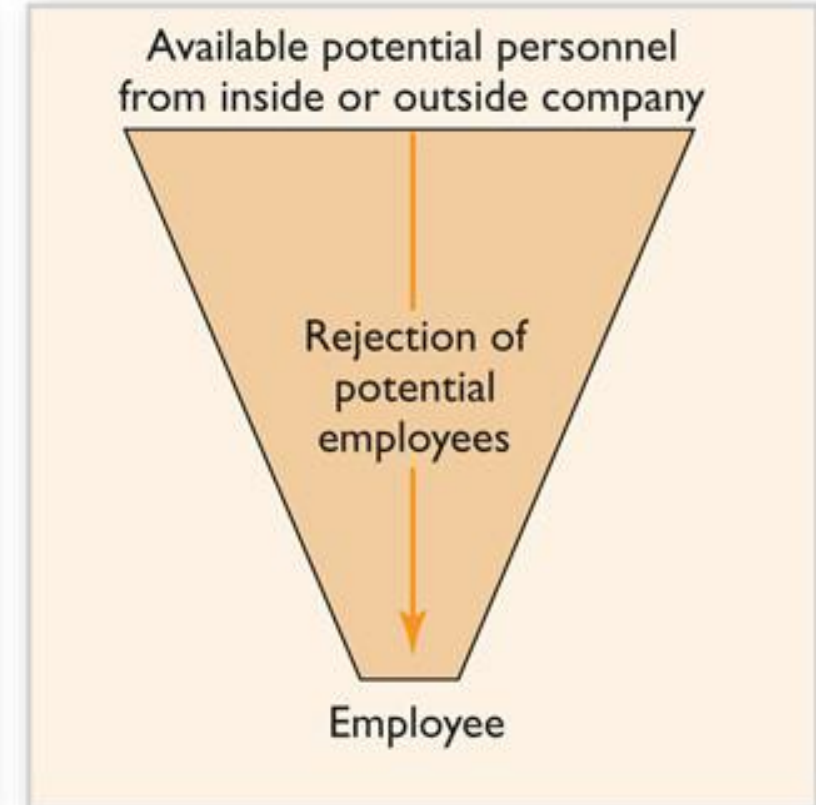

Personality tests
Performance references

Diagnostic interview

Physical examination
Personal judgment

REASONS FOR ELIMINATION

Lack of adequate educational and performance record
Obvious misfit from outward appearance and conduct
Failure to meet minimum standards
Failure to have minimum necessary aptitude
Negative aspects of personality
Unfavorable or negative reports on past performance
Lack of necessary innate ability, ambition, or other qualities
Physically unfit for job
Remaining candidate placed in available position

Selection Tools

- Testing:

Examining human resources for qualities relevant to performing available jobs.

- Assessment Centers:

A program (not a place) in which participants engage in a number of individual and group exercises constructed to simulate important activities at the organizational levels to which they aspire.

Selection Tools

Testing General Categories

- Aptitude Tests:

Measure the potential of an individual to perform a task (General Intelligence, Special Abilities & Skills {mechanical, clerical, visual}).

- Achievement Tests:

Measure the level of skill or knowledge an individual possesses in a certain area (Typing & Keyboarding Tests).

- Vocational Interest Tests:

Measure an individual's interest in performing various kinds of jobs.

- Personality Tests:

Describe an individual's personality dimensions in such areas as emotional maturity, subjectivity, honesty, and objectivity.

Selection Tools

Assessment Centers

- Activity/Exercise Simulation (Individual-Group):
- Activities included in the exercises could be:
 - Participating in leaderless discussions,
 - Giving oral presentations,
 - Leading a group in solving some assigned problem.
- Trained Assessors (Managers) observes the exercises.
- Criteria of Assessment could be:
 - Oral communication,
 - Conflict resolution,
 - Leadership,
 - Persuasion,
 - Problem solving.

Training

- Definition:

The process of developing qualities in human resources that will enable them to be more productive and thus contribute more to organizational goal attainment.

- Purpose:

To increase the productivity of employees by influencing their behavior.

Training Steps

Training Steps

Determining Training Needs

- Training Needs:

The information or skill areas of an individual/group that need further development to increase the productivity of that individual/group.

- Methods:

- Evaluating the production process within the organization.
- Getting direct feedback from employees on what they believe are the organization's training needs.
- Looking into the future.

Training Steps

Designing the Training Program

- Designing a program entails assembling various types of facts and activities that will meet the established training needs.

Training Steps

Administering the Training Program

- Is actually training the individuals selected to participate in the program.
- Techniques for Transmitting Information:
 - Lectures.
 - Programmed Learning.
- Techniques for Developing Skills:
 - On-The-Job.
 - Classroom.

Training Steps

Techniques for Transmitting Information

Lectures

One-way communication situation in which an instructor orally presents information to a group of listeners.

- Advantages:

- Allows the instructor to expose trainees to a maximum amount of information within a given time period.

- Disadvantages:

- No or little opportunity to: (Clarify Meanings, Check Understanding, Practice).
- Nature of the lecture makes it of minimal value in promoting attitudinal or behavioral change.

Training Steps

Techniques for Transmitting Information

Programmed Learning

A technique for instructing without the presence of a human instructor. Small parts of information requires responses from trainees who check the correctness of their own answers.

- Advantages:

- It can be computerized and students can:
 - Learn at their own pace.
 - Know immediately whether they are right or wrong.
 - Participate actively in the leaning process

- Disadvantages:

- no one is present to answer a confused learner's questions.

Training Steps

Techniques for Developing Skills

On-The-Job

Reflect a blend of job-related knowledge and experience throughout:

- Coaching:
 - Direct critiquing of how well an individual is performing a job.
- Position Rotation:
 - Moving an individual from job to job to enable the person to gain an understanding of the organization as a whole.
- Special Project Committees:
 - Methods for assigning a particular task to an individual to furnish him or her with experience in a designated area.

Training Steps

Techniques for Developing Skills

Classroom

Reflect a blend of job-related knowledge and experience throughout:

- Management Games:

- Small trainees groups who make and evaluate various management decisions.

- Role-playing Format:

- Acting out and then reflecting on some people-oriented problem that must be solved in the organization.

Training Steps

Evaluating the Training Program

- Management should evaluate the training program to determine whether it meets the needs for which it was designed.
- This result indicates a need to make significant changes in training programs at the companies covered by the survey.

Performance Appraisal (Review/Evaluation)

- Definition:

The process of reviewing individuals' past productive activity to evaluate the contribution they have made toward attaining management system objectives.

- Purpose:

To furnish feedback to organization members about how they can become more productive and useful to the organization in its quest for quality.

Why Use Performance Appraisals?

- They provide systematic judgments to support salary increases, promotions, transfers, and sometimes demotions or terminations.
- They are a means of telling subordinates how they are doing and of suggesting needed changes in behavior, attitudes, skills, or job knowledge; they let subordinates know where they stand with the boss.
- They furnish a useful basis for the coaching and counseling of individuals by superiors.

Handling Performance Appraisals

- It should stress performance in the position the individual holds and the success with which the individual is attaining organizational objectives.
- It should emphasize how well the individual is doing the job, not the evaluator's impression of the individual's work habits.
- It should be acceptable to both the evaluator and the subject.

Potential Weaknesses of Performance Appraisals

- Performance appraisals focus employees on short-term rewards rather than on issues that are important to the long-run success of the organization.
- Individuals involved in performance appraisals view them as a reward–punishment situation.
- The emphasis of performance appraisal is on completing paperwork rather than on critiquing individual performance.
- Individuals being evaluated view the process as unfair or biased.
- Subordinates react negatively when evaluators offer unfavorable comments.

Avoid Potential Weaknesses

- Supervisors and employees should look on the performance appraisal process as an opportunity to increase the worth of the employee through constructive feedback, not as a means of rewarding or punishing the employee through positive or negative comments.
- Paperwork should be viewed only as an aid in providing this feedback, not as an end in itself.
- Care should be taken to make appraisal feedback as tactful and objective as possible to minimize negative reactions.

Overview

