

Chapter 15

Influencing and Communication

By

Dr. Doaa Saleh

Overview

Fundamentals of Influencing

Definitions

- Influencing:

The process of guiding the activities of organization members in appropriate directions.

- Appropriate Directions:

The directions that lead to management system objectives attainment.

Influencing involves focusing on organization members as people and dealing with such issues as morale, arbitration of conflicts, and the development of good working relationships.

The Influencing Subsystem

The Influencing Subsystem

Fundamentals of Influencing

Chief Executives' Ranking of Skills They Believe Should Be Taught

Rank*	Key Learning Area	Frequency Indicated
1	Oral and written communication skills	25
1	Interpersonal skills	25
3	Financial/managerial accounting skills	22
4	Ability to think, be analytical, and make decisions	20
5	Strategic planning and goal setting—concern for long-term performance	13
6	Motivation and commitment to the firm—giving 110 percent	12
7	Understanding of economics	11
8	Management information systems and computer applications	9
8	Thorough knowledge of your business, culture, and overall environment	9
8	Marketing concept (the customer is king) and skills	9
11	Integrity	7
11	Knowledge of yourself: setting long- and short-term career objectives	7
13	Leadership skills	6
13	Understanding of the functional areas of the business	6
15	Time management: setting priorities—how to work smart, not long or hard	1

Fundamentals of Influencing Emotional Intelligence

- Is a concept developed by Daniel Goleman, is growing in popularity and prominence among both managers and management scholars.
- Overall, Goleman's concept enriches a discussion of influencing by focusing on specific skills that enable managers to become successful in guiding people toward goal accomplishment.

- Definition:

Is the capacity of people to recognize their own feelings and the feelings of others, to motivate themselves, and to manage their own emotions as well as the emotions in relationships with others.

Fundamentals of Influencing Emotional Intelligence

- Studies indicate that managers with higher levels of emotional intelligence are likely:
 - to be successful because they are likely to build organization culture characterized by trust, learning, information-sharing, and desirable risk taking.
 - to be interpersonally effective when compared to managers with lower levels of emotional intelligence.
 - to be more satisfied in their jobs than other managers.
 - to have the employees who work for them with higher levels of emotional intelligence are more satisfied with their jobs.

Fundamentals of Influencing Emotional Intelligence

Emotionally intelligent managers:

1. Motivate others
2. Focus on personal and organizational achievement
3. Understand others
4. Communicate efficiently and effectively
5. Lead others
6. Build successful teams
7. Handle conflict appropriately
8. Change organizations appropriately
9. Manage diversity
10. Manage creativity and innovation

Communication

- Definition:

Is the process of sharing information with other individuals.
Information, as used here, is any thought or idea that managers want to share with others.

- Communication Activities:

- Interpersonal communication.
- Sharing information with other organization members.

Interpersonal Communication

- How interpersonal communication works?
- The relationship between feedback and interpersonal communication.
- The importance of verbal versus nonverbal interpersonal communication

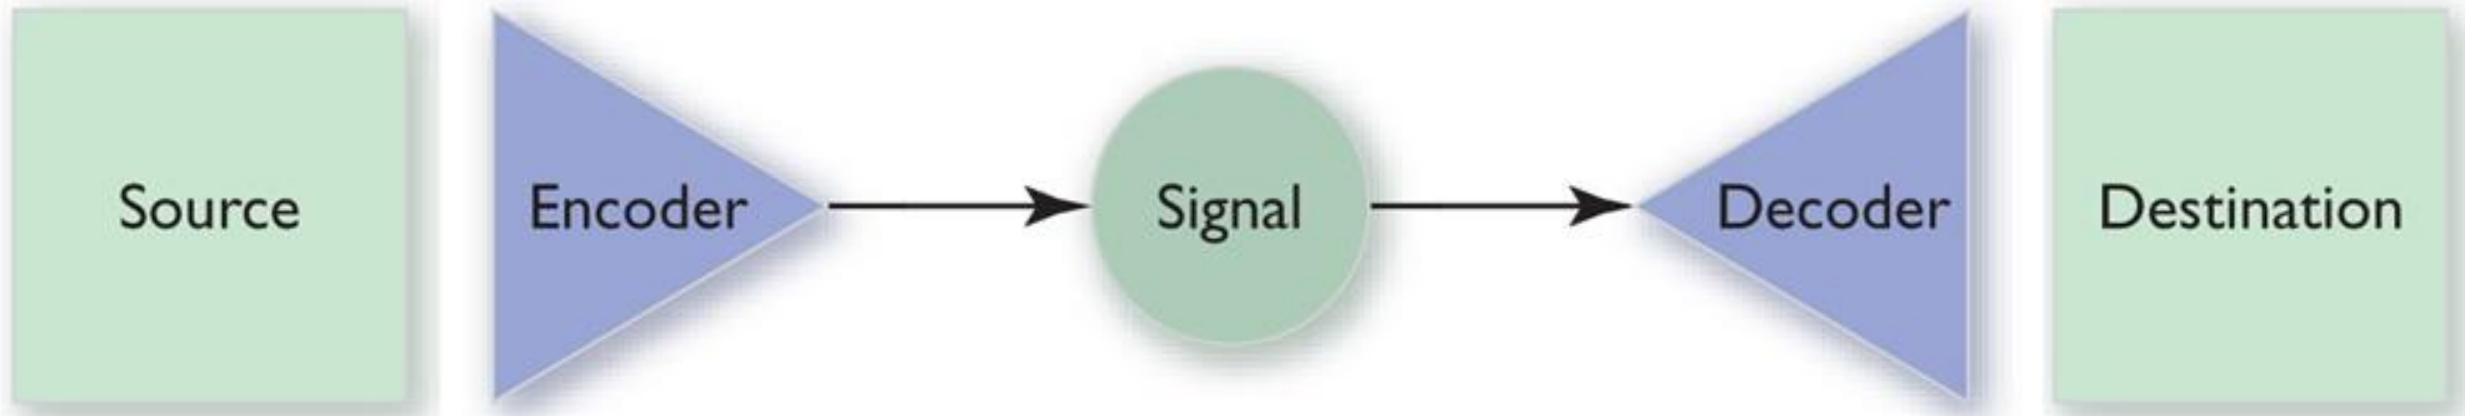

Interpersonal Communication

How interpersonal communication works?

- The source/encoder (source):
 - Is the person in the interpersonal communication situation who originates and encodes information to be shared with others (Thoughts → Letter).
- The signal:
 - Encoded information that the source intends to share constitutes a message.
- The decoder/destination (destination):
 - Is the person or persons with whom the source is attempting to share information.

Interpersonal Communication

How interpersonal communication works?

Interpersonal Communication

Successful and Unsuccessful Interpersonal Communication

- Successful Communication:

- An interpersonal communication situation in which the information the source intends to share with the destination and the meaning the destination derives from the transmitted message are the same.

- Unsuccessful Communication:

- An interpersonal communication situation in which the information the source intends to share with the destination and the meaning the destination derives from the transmitted message are different.

Barriers to Successful Interpersonal Communication

- Communication Macrobarriers:

Are factors that hinder successful communication in a general communication situation.

1. The increasing need for information.
2. The need for increasingly complex information.
3. The reality that people in the United States are increasingly coming into contact with people who use languages other than English.
4. The constant need to learn new concepts cuts down on the time available for communication.

Barriers to Successful Interpersonal Communication

- Communication Microbarriers:

Are factors that hinder successful communication in a specific communication situation.

1. The source's view of the destination.
2. Message interference.
3. The destination's view of the source.
4. Perception.
5. Multimeaning words.

Achieving Communication Effectiveness

1. Seek to clarify your ideas before communicating
2. Examine the true purpose of each communication
3. Consider total physical and human setting whenever you communicate
4. Consult with others, when appropriate, in planning communications
5. Be mindful of the overtones while you communicate
6. Take the opportunity to convey something of help or value
7. Follow up your communication
8. Communicate for tomorrow as well as today
9. Be sure your actions support your communications
10. Seek not only to be understood, but also to understand

Feedback and Interpersonal Communication

- Feedback is the destination's reaction to a message.
 - Verbal Feedback.
 - Nonverbal Feedback.

Verbal and Nonverbal Interpersonal Communication

- The Importance of Nonverbal Communication

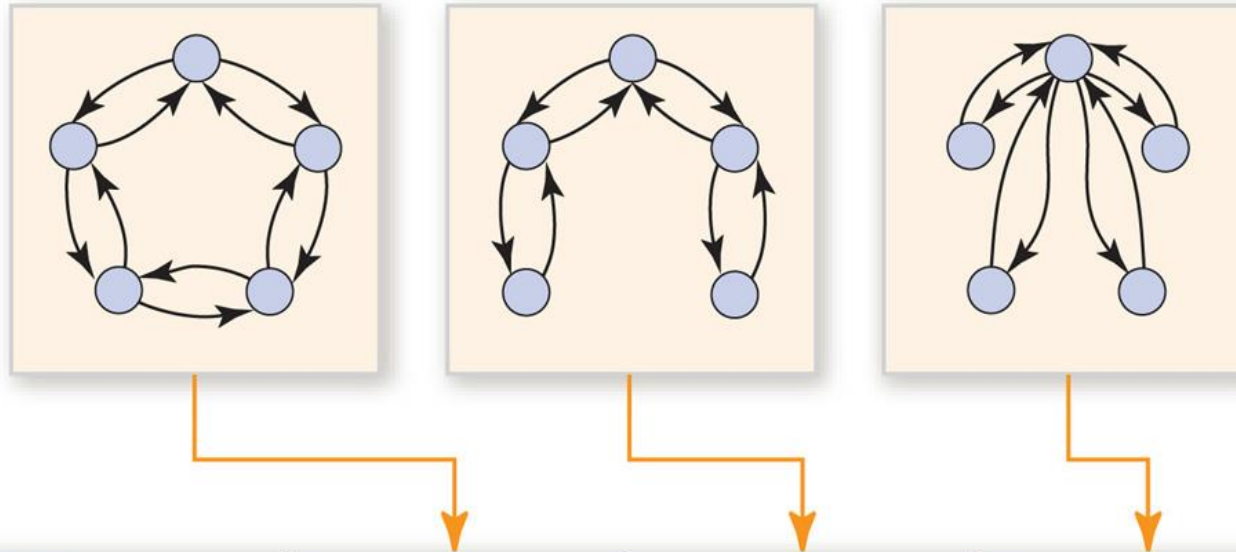

Total message impact = %7 words + %38 vocal tones + %55 facial expressions

- Nonverbal messages can also be used to add content to verbal messages.

Interpersonal Communication in Organizations

- Formal Organizational Communication
 - Types of Formal Organizational Communication
 - 1. Downward
 - 2. Upward
 - 3. Lateral

Patterns of Formal Organizational Communication

SPEED	Slow	Fast	Fast
ACCURACY	Poor	Good	Good
ORGANIZATION	No stable form of organization	Slowly emerging but stable organization	Almost immediate and stable organization
EMERGENCE OF LEADER	None	Marked	Very pronounced
MORALE	Very good	Poor	Very poor

Informal Organizational Communication

- Patterns of Informal Organizational Communication

Grapevine characteristics:

1. Springs up and is used irregularly within the organization
2. Not controlled by top executives
3. Exists largely to serve the self-interests of the people within it

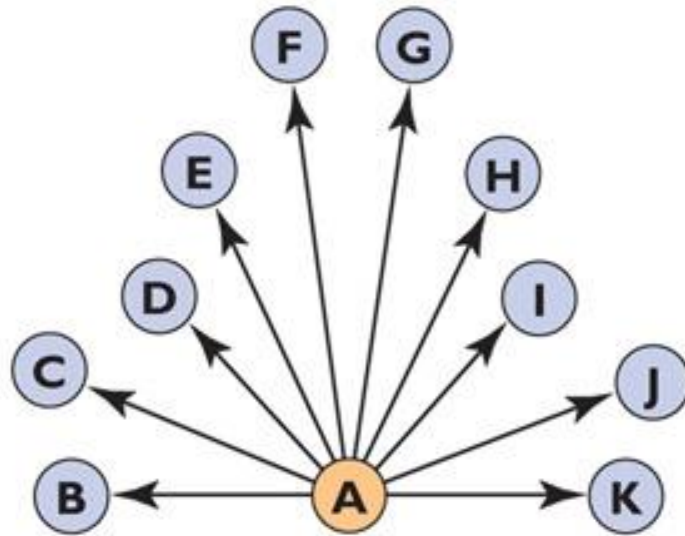

Grapevine patterns:

1. The single-strand grapevine
2. The gossip grapevine
3. The probability grapevine
4. The cluster grapevine

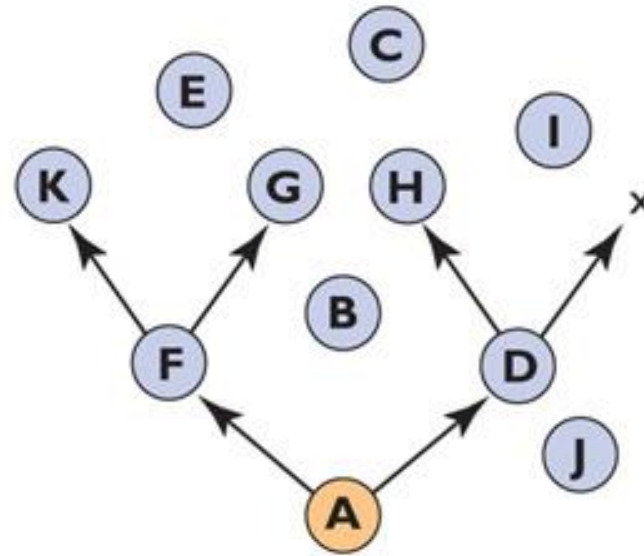

Informal Organizational Communication

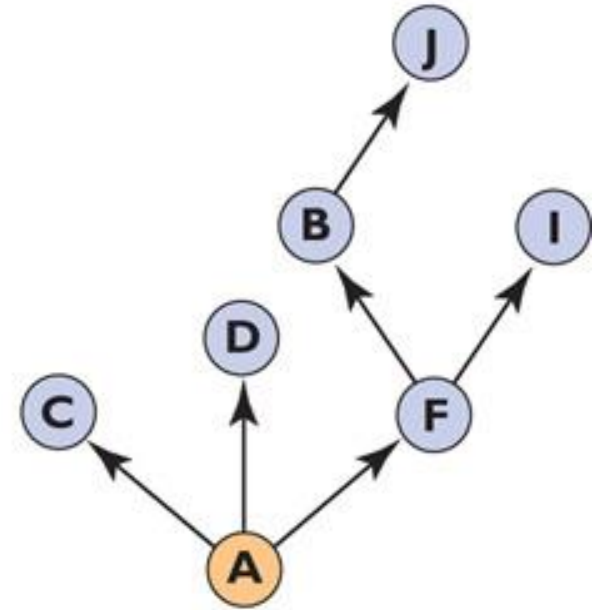

Single strand

Gossip

Probability

Cluster

Encouraging Formal Organizational Communication

- Support the flow of clear and concise statements.
- Ensure that all members have free access to formal channels.
- Assign specific communication responsibilities to staff.
- Trust in leaders.

Overview

